See Little Immediate Hope For Coal Mines

The Alberta coal industry is facing its darkest moments, although there is a strong possibility rapid industrial expansion in the province may revive it, Hon. A. Russell Patrick, provincial minister of economic affairs, told The Herald during his two-day visit to the city for a meeting of the provincial board of industrial development.

Within the next 10 years, according to Mr. Patrick, a need for greater electrical power may revive the coal mines a bit.

"But, we're not trying to paint a rosy picture," Mr. Patrick said. "They're going to have to go down in spite of anything. And, they'll just have to come up again."

The minister said he could offer no solution to the problem of keeping the mines operating until such time as coal would again be in demand for power manufacture. Rehabilitate Miners.

In the meantime, he said, the government is doing its best to rehabilitate men who are leaving the mines.

"It's a serious problem. I personally don't know the answer," John Gregory, head of the industrial engineering services branch of the Research Council of Alberta, said when asked what solution to the coal problem was possible.

Mr. Gregory, who also was attending the meeting said he felt coal would be in demand for production of electrical energy after the better hydro sites have been developed.

Butane Plant

Southern Alberta, because of its huge natural gas deposits, Mr. Gregory said, would be an economical feasible location for a butane manufacturing plant, such as the one outlined recently by Rt. Hon. C. D. Howe, federal minister of trade and commerce.

At present, he said, the research council is doing fundamental research in two aspects of this field.

Experiments are being carried on regarding the partial oxidation of butane, in the hopes of enlarging knowledge in this area and finding new developments in techniques.

The council, he said, is also working out practical conditions for the production of carbon black, an essential ingredient in manufacture of artificial rubber by a newly-developed process.

Heard Iron Reports

Reports from the company has commenced drilling tests for iron ore in the area south of the Crow's Nest Pass have been received by the council, he said, but he has not heard any definite reports on this yet.

"We are giving consideration to considerable expansion of our geological staff," he said, "and hope to give more time to studying mineral resources reports."

His branch of the council, Mr. Gregory explained, is primarily concerned with providing technical information and help to manufacturing and processing industries in the province.

Federal Agency

The branch is a federal agency, and is represented in Alberta by the research council which does extensive field work through the province, visiting firms and looking for any technical difficulties pertaining to their work.

This information is forwarded to the National Research Council in Ottawa where a staff of specialized information officers prepare solutions to the problems and send them back to the firms.

The branch offers the service free to any firms wishing assistance and all reports are held in confidence, Mr. Gregory emphasized.

Easy way to get your moose

Connie Brunham, veneer plant labie supervisor, is living high off a bull moose he shot that weighed nearly half a ton. Not only that, but he got his meat the relatively easy way — in a spot so near the road he and his hunting partner, Georges Connaty, got it out within an hour. The kill was made alongside the railroad tracks on the Moyle river.

Coleman By-Law Given 3rd Reading

Coleman town council held its regular meeting Wednesday evening when a bylaw regarding the obstruction of all streets and roads and other public places by vehicles, had its third reading.

The main provisions of the by-law are: 1. No vehicle shall stand parked in one spot for a "continuous period of 24 hours. 2. Any vehicles must be moved immediately when requested by police officers. 3. Any expenses incurred when it is found necessary to move a vehicle will be in addition to and if any penalty is imposed on the owner of the vehicle.

Council also agreed to have fully repaired one of the town trucks rather than purchase a new vehicle.

Women's Missionary Society Christmas Meeting

On Thursday, December 8, the W.M.S. of St. Paul's United Church held their Christmas meeting in the church. A Candle Lighting Service dedicated to new Canadians was led by Mrs. M. Dunford. Candles were lit by Mrs. Norma Lowe, Mrs. J. Glendinning, Mrs. R. Woods, Mrs. B. Bond, Miss M. Dunlop and Mrs. John McDonald. Mrs. Ed Ash repeated the magnificent. The C.G.L.T. sang the carol "I was in the Moon of Wintertime" as a tribute to our Canadian Indians. Mrs. C. Picard gave the Christmas Story which was written by Rev. H. Bevan, a former United Church minister. Mrs. J. Owen, the retiring president thanked all who had helped with the W.M.S. work in the past years, and thanked all leaders of mid-week groups for their work. Mrs. J. Rushion gave the closing prayer and Benediction. The Explorer Group were also present for the service. Lunch was enjoyed by all at the close of the program. Mrs. M. McKinnon was convener of the lunch. Mrs. R. McAulay was pianist for the evening.

Figures Released On Sales Of Christmas Seals

Returns during the first two weeks of the annual Christmas Seal Sale amounted to $7,729 according to Mr. R. J. McCulloch, chairman of the Lethbridge Kinsmen Club T.B. Christmas Seal Sale Committee. This compares with $6,925 for a similar period last year.

"Daily receipts are being well maintained," Mr. R. J. McCulloch said, "and with the Christmas season rapidly approaching, we are hopeful that people will remember to remit for their seals in increasing volume over the next two weeks."

Mr. R. E. Ashburner, treasurer of the Alberta Tuberculosis Association, reports total returns for the province amount to $82,495 toward an objective of $214,000, the minimum amount required to carry on the work of the Association during the coming year.

In addition to the more than one million free chest X-rays which have been provided through the Mobile Units, funds are required to carry on the case-finding through hospital admission chest X-ray, rehabilitation of T.B. patients and nursing service programs of the Association.

That the Alberta Tuberculosis Association performs a useful function is again demonstrated in the statement made by the Hon. Dr. W. W. Crow, Minister of Health, province of Alberta, when he said "The provincial Department of Public Health appreciates the value of the work which is done by the Alberta Tuberculosis Association in relation to the welfare of tuberculosis cases and in relation to the educational campaign which you carry out. We hope you will have continued success in the work you are undertaking."

Contributions may be sent to the Kinsmen Club T.B. Christmas Seal committee, City Hall, Lethbridge, Alberta.

CANADA'S MISTER HOCKEY — Foster Hewitt doesn't need any introduction to Canadians. Enough to say that he's on hand once again to broadcast the National Hockey League games every Saturday night — a weekly assignment he's had since the Maple Leaf Gardens opened in 1931. Hewitt holds a world's record for length of service in broadcasting; he started in 1923 when he was eighteen and shortly afterwards made the first broadcast of a hockey game in Canada. Ever since then he's been so closely associated with the game that he is as well known to the hockey fans as any of its greatest players. While in college he was an undefeated boxing champion, and has written many books on hockey.

Old Age Pensioners Association Enjoy Christmas Party

Some 96 members of the Old Age Pensioners Association sat down to a delicious turkey supper on Tuesday evening.

The tables beautifully laid, had a small marshmallow candle-holder made by the Explorers group of St. Paul's United Church at each place. Special napkins with the name of the association, and donated by Miss Margaret Roughhead, also graced each place.

Flowers, donated by R. Crippen, decorated the tables. Turkey with all the trimmings topped off with jelly and cream, and assorted Christmas cookies, were enjoyed by all present. Mrs. J. Rushion said the Grace.

Following the supper, President Mrs. N. Goulding thanked all of those attending, the merchants of Coleman, The Lethbridge Herald, Bellevue Bakery, McGavin Bakery and all who had donated to make this such a lovely supper.

The Salvation Army Lieut. L. Munro then distributed bags of oranges, apples and candy to all present. The tables were then cleared to make way for the meeting of the Association.

Mrs. N. Goulding presided at the meeting of the Association.

It was decided that since the January meeting would fall on January 2nd, it was too close to the holidays and so would be cancelled.

From The Police Court

Christmas cards and decorations were the main subject on the magistrate's bench last week when Mrs. Teresa Korner of Coleman, was charged by Kew's store with damage to goods of less than $50.00.

After considerable arguments from both parties the magistrate was able to set the damage at $20 and in doing so assessed Mrs. Korner $5 and costs plus damages.

It appears that an argument arose over the price of goods in the store, plus an old account and that tempers flared with the result goods were swept from the counter onto the floor and were slightly damaged.

The magistrate warned Mrs. Korner not to indulge in further efforts of this kind, and to stay away from this store.

Exploit Coal Resources and Alberta Can Make Cheaper Steel

CALGARY (C.P.) — Steel could be produced here at a lower cost than it is in Ontario steel centres if Alberta's coal resources were properly exploited.

This claim was made by Charles Weir, provincial representative of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.).

W. C. Whitaker, general manager of the Coal Operators' Association of Western Canada, agreed, when he said: "We don't think coal resources in Alberta have been exploited as they should have been."

This province, besides having plenty of coal, has iron ore deposits. With these two necessary products, steel could be produced comparatively cheaply, Mr. Weir said.

The Ontario mills have to import both ore and coal for manufacture, which adds greatly to their production costs.

Mr. Whitaker said: "It's our hope a steel industry will come to the province, and with the growing population, it gets nearer every day... but no one can say exactly how far it is away."

Local 800, the Calgary branch of the U.M.W.S.W., will ask a 15-cent, across-the-board increase from two local plants at the beginning of the new year. Present wages range from $1.44 to $2.02 per hour.

Members of the Calgary Metal Workers' Union, a part of Local 800, will also present contract demands early next year and Edmonton Local 884 will ask for the same increase.

Union members will also ask two weeks vacation after one year's employment, three weeks after two years, and four weeks after 25 years.

Bruin leaves his foot prints

A bear which broke through a quarter-inch plate glass window and entered the lobby of the Kitimat hotel at Kitimat, B.C., was too busy scaring hotel patrons to register.

The bear threw around a few chairs and then left through the broken window without visiting the hotel's famous, 800-chair pub.

Another bruin walked through wet concrete laid at the site of the new Bank of Montreal building.

Woman coachman Parisian tradition

Rachel Dorange, of Paris, the "woman coachman", belongs to the Champs Elysees as much as the chestnut trees and the sidewalk cafes.

This woman with her grey red hair and bright smile is more than a tradition. She is literally a moving monument. Summer and winter, her flaccid, a small hackney coach, carries sightseers along the boulevards of Paris.

Although comparatively young in years, Mademoiselle Dorange's coach recalls a past era when leisure was not a luxury and an afternoon drive was a major diversion.

Two other women have capitalized on Rachel Dorange's popularity and followed her lead, but Rachel was the first woman to drive a horse carriage in Paris.

Rachel's carriage is to be found most days at lunch time around the Rond Point de Champs Elysees. If this spot is sometimes vacant, it merely implies that Rachel has gone off on a trip.

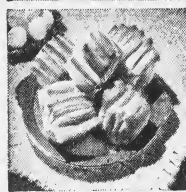

Three years ago, Rachel made a trip to London with her horse and carriage, and was delighted when the Queen smiled at her in Hyde Park.

fall are the house pet's most active periods. They are usually out during these seasons of the year, but as the cold weather approaches the owner no longer is so enthusiastic about getting out with the dog. The dog, too, usually is very happy to get into the house again and rarely stays out any longer than is necessary.

Thus, the dog's activity is considerably decreased. The amount of food a dog requires depends entirely on the amount of food energy the dog requires to keep him going. If he's inactive during the winter, he doesn't need so much food. Of course being a dog, he'll usually eat any given quantity, but the excess only goes to build up fat. So, if you don't want a fat slobber in the spring, give some thought now to a decrease in the food intake.

This is the season of the year, too, when there should be a vitamin supplement for the diet. In the summer this is not nearly so necessary, for the bright sunshine helps supply the dog with the necessary sunshine vitamins. In the winter, however, can be dangerous. Dogs love heat and, if permitted, will choose a spot close to the nearest radiator or hot air register. This should not be permitted, for too much heat is not good for the dog's coat and there's always the danger of chill when the dog does go out into cold, wintry weather.

It's important to remember that a dog does not need hot sleeping quarters—a temperature of about 60 degrees being ideal for the short-coated breeds and less than that for the long-coated ones. Floor drafts, however, can be dangerous, and a bed, built on two-by-fours, to raise the dog above the level of the floor will pay dividends in good health.

Archaeologists find evidence pre-Roman town

The men who excavate historians by unearthing evidence of the 500-year Roman occupation of Britain went one better in London recently and told of digging up remnants of an even older society.

Archaeologists are always uncovering relics of the Roman siege, but a leader of a recent expedition delighted Britain's large crop of historians by proving the existence of an organized community active before Julius Caesar's followers took over the country.

The pre-Roman town, inhabited by Celts, was sited near the present-day village of Silchester, on the Berkshire-Hampshire border 30 miles west of London.

The Romans began their domination in 55 B.C., but because of the difficulties of transportation, they did not attack the village until about 40 A.D. The Celts then fled the area and settled in Wales.

Excavations were made in a 45-foot-wide ditch, believed to have been a barrier in the community's defence system.

In the bottom of the ditch, under 10 feet of earth, archaeologists found hundreds of pieces of broken pots and vases.

"That was definite proof that the society existed before the Roman conquest," George Boot, of Reading Museum, said.

Boon's party will go back to the area next September and dig up more details, including other places which might hold evidence of the hamlet or its residents.

"We might be able to locate some partial walls, weapons and valuables around the area. In the historical sense, you can say our discovery was extremely important. We hope soon to be able to get more articles of interest."

Wild oat problem for discussion Weed Control meet

REGINA.—The wild oat problem, an expensive one for western farmers, will be discussed at length along with other timely weed problems, at the 8th Western Canadian Weed Control conference to be held at the Hotel Saskatchewan, Regina, November 2-10 and 30th.

H. W. Leggett, superintendent, Regina experimental farm, will give a paper entitled, "Where do We Stand on Wild Oat Control?" His talk will bring together all the latest information available on wild oats control based on experiments conducted throughout western Canada over the past few years.

A summary of recommended methods of weed control, both cultural and chemical, will be given by Dr. R. T. Coupland, head of the department of plant ecology, University of Saskatchewan. Dr. Coupland's talk will be based on recommendations arising out of information to be reviewed prior to the conference by the Western Section of the National Weed Committee.

Something comparatively new in weed control, which may have real possibilities, is the use of disease organisms and insects. This subject will be dealt with by Dr. J. M. Smith, Insect Parasitology Laboratory, Belleville, Ontario. Research and experimentation carried out has shown that certain weeds may be controlled by these means, when chemical and cultural means are not feasible. Insects raised for the purpose have been employed in the control of a bad rampant weed in British Columbia, with some success.

R. E. McKenzie, chairman of the Weed Conference expressed the hope that as many farmers, weed inspectors and municipal officials as were able would attend the sessions. "Weed losses in western Canada alone come to $250 million dollars a year, he said, and information made available at the meetings should in some way help to cut down these serious losses."

NEW MATERIAL

For the first time, researchers recently blended cotton fibre with cotton and wool to weave material for clothing.

What's new in barley

The new recently licensed barley varieties are Vantmore, and Hudson.

Dr. D. G. Hamilton, chief, cereal division, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, reports that Vantmore is a feed barley created by W. H. Johnston and D. Metcalfe at the Experimental Farm in Brandon, Man. This variety is superior to Vantage in Manitoba and the first seed lots for commercial production were distributed in Manitoba this fall. Demand for seed was so great that all stocks were allocated soon after the seed was advertised.

The other newly licensed variety Hudson is a winter barley which originated in New York State. It is superior to Wong, Temessee Winter, and Kenzie in yielding ability and straw strength. It is only winter hardy enough to be grown in southwestern Ontario.

Good progress was made during the year, both at the University of Manitoba and the Experimental Farm in Brandon, Man., in the development of a new malting barley. Although it is very difficult to produce a new variety of malting barley, both these institutions have varieties in the final year of testing. However, no variety will be released unless it meets a long list of exacting field and laboratory requirements.

There is a keen interest by plant breeders in some of the introduced European two-rowed varieties and a few of these are in their final year of testing. There are many good two-rowed barleys coming out of European plant breeding institutions and sooner or later some of them may be found to be quite suitable for Canadian conditions.

There are several serious diseases of barley and at present efforts are being made to breed resistant varieties. The smuts

U.S. snuff-ers keep snuffing at steady rate

Everything else may fluctuate in a rapidly changing world, but this fact at least seems stable: U.S. snuff lovers will keep on snuffing snuff, come war, depression, peace or prosperity, says an Associated Press story.

A check on a new agriculture department report in Washington shows that 39,000,000 pounds of snuff will go up the nostrils, or into the mouths, of the faithful this year.

A lot of snuff

Here's what makes the statistic unusual: With scarcely any variation, around 39,000,000 pounds of the stuff have been used annually for 35 years, and maybe longer.

By contrast, chewing tobacco, once considered an American art, has hit the skids.

There is a popular misconception about snuffers. Many people still conceive of snuff with an asterisked tinge... the silver snuff box, the lace sleeve, the monade, the delicate pinch of snuff before the witty remark.

That's nonsense. Those on the lower end of the economic scale are the most faithful. Usually, they don't snuff it. They put small bits between the lower lip of the gum and suck it. In some areas it's considered dandy for toothache.

Used in south

The Southern States account for much of the snuff consumption, and Scandinavians in the northwestern lumber business and fishermen in New England also use it.

Snuff had its finest hour during the Second World War. Many defence plants had stern "no snuffing" rules, and workers tried snuff as a substitute.

The United States Senate continues to have filled snuffboxes on each senator's desk. No one dips at least not regularly—but the page boys keep the boxes filled. The demand may be small, but it's steady. Of those 39,000,000 pounds produced each year, one pound goes to the U.S. Senate.

Detroit, Toronto youngest clubs in the NHL

Detroit Red Wings have the youngest team in the National Hockey League this season with the Toronto Maple Leafs a scant two percentage points back of the Wings. The average age of each member of the Red Wings this season is 24.5 years, while the average age of the Maple Leafs is 24.7 years.

The oldest club in the circuit are the Montreal Canadiens. The Canadiens average an even 27 years per player. The New York Rangers are the third youngest squad in the loop. Average age of a Ranger this term is 24.9 years. Boston Bruins and Chicago Black Hawks have an average age of 25.2 and 26.4 years per man respectively. This points the Black Hawks as the second oldest club in the NHL and Boston the third oldest.

Butch Bouchard, captain of the Canadiens, is the oldest player in the league at 35. The Canadiens have more players in the 30 or over category than any other team. There are five players on the Canadiens who are in this group. Besides Bouchard, there's Maurice Richard, 34; Ken Mosdell, 33; and Doug Harvey and Floyd Curry, each 30.

Boston and Chicago each have three players in the 30 or over group. Don Raleigh at 29 is the oldest player on the Rangers. The youngest player in the entire league is Detroit's rookie defenseman, Larry Hillman. The youthful Hillman is only 18. He won't be 19 until March 5, 1956.

The Red Wings have another youngster in rookie Norman Uhlman who is only 19. Other 19-year-olds in the NHL are Dick Duff with Toronto and Henri Richard with Canadiens.

Duff was born on February 18, 1936, while Richard is a Leap Year Baby, being born of February 29, 1936.

There are five teen-agers in the National Hockey League, 15 who are 30 or more and 87 in their twenties. The average age of a National Hockey League player this season is 25.4 years.

The average age of 4-H Club members in Canada is approximately 13.2 years.

How you practice is important

Ability to shoot baskets in free shooting practice—no checkers to impede the shot—does not necessarily mean ability to shoot accurately in games. This fact was uncovered by a Sports College study of practice techniques used in high school basketball.

It was found that most coaches relied on free shooting to teach this skill. And most of these coaches were far from satisfied with the results.

The reason appeared to be that shooting under the pressure of game conditions is a totally different situation than free shooting, when there is plenty of time and no hustle and bustle, tension, noise or movement to upset concentration. Therefore, it is a mistake to expect skill at one to be transmitted to the other.

Several coaches were asked to drill their players under game conditions, or as close to game conditions as could be developed in practice. Every coach who carried through effectively reported improved shooting performance.

The type of practice found most effective was that in which players were paired off, one shooting, the other checking. The defensive man would try to distract the shooter, doing everything an opponent might do in a game. Positions would be reversed after every shot.

Shot practising in scrimmage seemed ineffective because many players had only a few shooting opportunities.

Unimpeded shooting practice apparently is helpful when learning such skills as proper hand position, co-ordination, balance, etc. But it does not teach concentration, which seems to be the most important qualification of good shooting in games.

What is the best stride for cross-country running?

The theory on stride used to be—use as long a stride as is comfortable. But owing to the recent successes of European runners such as Sandor Iharos, Gordon Pirie, Laszlo Tabort, Emil Zatopek and others, this has changed.

These runners use a short, "chopped" stride, well within their stride length. They get a full shove-off from the rear foot, let the heel swing well up—but they don't reach out for stride at all; they just let that foot drop right down underneath their body, keeping the foot well behind the knee at all times.

Canadian cross-country runners would be wise to experiment with this type of stride, trying to find the length that suits each individual. Remember, it is the ease and relaxation of stride—the economy of effort—which is important, not the length.

WEEKLY BIBLE COMMENT

NEED IS GREAT FOR CHRISTIAN WAY OF LIFE

Now, as never before, do we need the Guidance of Scripture to a Christian way of life.

The Christian way of life is defined, when Matthew, Mark and Luke, explicitly, and in the whole New Testament, generally, in the two great commandments of love to God and love to man; to love God with all the heart and soul and mind and strength, and to love one's neighbor as one's self.

It ought to be noted that this is not the Christian way alone; it is in the highest teaching of Judaism, as one may see by turning to Deuteronomy. And in the Shema, the verses from that chapter containing the great commandment were a part of the worship in the synagogue every Sabbath.

Jesus did not invent these commandments, or the Christian way of life. He asked His questioner what was written in the law; how did he read it? And when the questioner replied in the words of the two commandments, Jesus approved.

"This do," said He, "and thou shalt live." He had come, not to destroy, but to fulfill. It is by obedience to the substitution of the universal Ten Commandments—that we may hope to aspire to a truly Christian way of life.

Predicts end major diseases by year 2000

Looking into the future, a North American authority predicts that man will overcome all of the major diseases by the year 2000, according to a report by the Medical and Pharmaceutical Information Bureau received by the Health League of Canada.

Dr. Lowry H. McDaniel expects that heart disease and high blood pressure will be controlled, cancer will be conquered, and even the common cold will become only a memory.

The doctor told a recent medical meeting that all infectious diseases, including tuberculosis and rheumatic fever, will be eradicated by new drugs or vaccines. As for cancer, it is his conviction that it will be destroyed either by planting radioactive "time bombs" in malignant tumors or by giving patients "hungry" viruses that will eat up cancer cells but not healthy tissues.

Eye surgeons will be able to restore eyesight to blind people, and there will be portable electronic devices that will allow deaf people to "talk". Drugs, according to the doctor, will be found to cure mental cases now considered hopeless.

Parrot good pup-sitter

When the pointer dog belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Orville Watts, who live on a farm near Miami, Oklahoma, had six pups the family's 30-year-old parrot became an assiduous pup-sitter.

Spending much of her time at the barn where the pups were kept, she muzzled and talked to them constantly. "Whatta matter?" she asked them when a bumbling, big-footed pup stepped on her or fell into her.

Canadiens loaded with local players

Montreal Canadiens come closest to being a 100 percent local team. Out of the 17 players listed on their current roster, no less than 13 were born in the Province of Quebec and eight were born right in Montreal, with Donnie Marshall being born in the neighboring city of Verdun, which for all purposes might as well be classed as Montreal. This would raise the number of Montrakeers on the club to nine.

The eight members of Canadiens who first saw the light of day in Montreal are the two Richards, Maurice and Henri, Butch Bouchard, Doreau St. Laurent, Claude Provost, Doug Harvey, Dickie Moore and Ken Mosdell.

Although 11 of the 16 players on the Toronto Maple Leafs were born in the Province of Ontario, only four were born right in Toronto. The four are Captain Sid Smith, Hugh Bolton, Billy Harris and Earl Balfour.

Predicts big jump in U.S. population

The Stanford Research Institute predicts the U.S. population will jump 35 percent between 1954 and 1975, with a total of 221,749,000 persons compared to today's 165,000,000 plus population.

Pacific Coast states are in for the biggest part of the coming growth, according to the institute. They will show a 76 percent growth for a total of 29,439,000 by 1975.

The Mountain States should gain some 66 percent during the period to reach a population of 9,582,000.

California will register the largest jump—57.7 percent—with an increase from 12,554,000 to 23,565,000.

To reach these figures the Institute's economists applied birth, death, and migration rates to specific age groups. This technique, called the "cohort-survival method," is considered more accurate than strict mathematical forecasts which tend to neglect the vital factors of population growth and change.

World's best pie testers

When Dr. Walter A. MacInn, a food specialist and professor at Rutgers University, was at odds with food editors on whether to freeze pies before or after baking, he knew where to go for a panel of experts.

What better tasting jury than 10 hungry boys, all less than 10 years old?

The 75 editors, representing newspapers, magazines and radio stations on the eastern seaboard, had contended after sampling some of Dr. MacInn's pies—mostly apple — that the ones frozen before baking tasted best.

But Dr. MacInn was skeptical. So he rounded up the boys and assembled them in Buccleuch Park.

"The youngsters went along with me down the line," the professor reported. "They couldn't detect any difference in flavor between the 'before' and the 'after' frozen pies. And what's more, they thought I was a good cook."

Icelander wins Nobel prize

The 1955 Nobel prize for literature was awarded recently to Hallor Kiljan Laxness, the great Icelandic epic writer.

The 53-year-old novelist won the award for his sweeping tales of drama and poetry in the everyday life of the 150,000 people of this little north Atlantic island.

Laxness, who began writing as a boy among his father's sheep and had his first novel published at 17, will receive a cheque for 190,214 Swedish crowns ($37,000) and the Nobel insignia from the hands of King Gustaf of Sweden at the traditional Nobel ceremony in Stockholm December 10.

The award ended a bitter controversy of several years over the candidacy of the colorful Icelander who once termed the Atlantic pact "a society of war lunatics."

Informed sources said members of the Royal Swedish Academy had overcome their dislike for Laxness' leftist political leanings only because of the current easing of international tension. Laxness himself denies that he is a communist.

The academy became the awarding body for the literary prizes in 1901 under the will of Alfred B. Nobel, inventor of dynamite.

Laxness is best known abroad for the novels "Salka Valka", which he began as a film scenario in Hollywood, and "Independent People."

ABOUT MANY THINGS

(By Ambrose Hills)

THOUGHTS ABOUT CHRISTMAS

"Daddy, tell us about Christmas when you were small," begged my twin daughters.

It's hard to tell any one what Christmas meant to you when you were a boy.

Many of my memories involve physical senses. The wonderful taste of mixed candy when eaten together with freshly shelled nuts. The smell of Japanese oranges. The rattle of paper and other mysterious noises drifting up the back stairs just as you were finally falling asleep on Christmas Eve. And I recall crisp Winter air nipping my nose as I walked barefoot on the skating rink on Christmas day. He was visiting "Ramona" and "Girl of My Dreams." I used to think that if I could ever whistle as good as he did I wouldn't ask for anything better from this world.

Sometimes your most vivid memories are of people you loved very much who came to visit at your home for Christmas. So you tell about the uncle who never failed to bring just the perfect toy, and to help you play with it. You never mention the uncle's tendency to imbibe a bit too much. Looking back, it doesn't seem to matter that he kept the town awake into dawn of Christmas day by singing carols in the streets. He did have a mighty sweet tenor voice, didn't he?

And as you try to tell the twins of Christmas Past you find yourself dwelling more and more on people you loved, your parents and friends. Until the twins protest. "No, No, No, Daddy... tell about the toys... the nuts and candy... and the stockings..."

So that is what you do.

But at the same time you know that someday, when the twins look back on Christmas, and try to tell their children all about it, they, too, will find themselves remembering people most of all. For that is the essence of Christmas—people you love, and the One who is Love!

Send That Christmas Letter

In every community in this Dominion, in the United States, in far-off England and Europe, sit mothers and fathers, looking forward to Christmas letters from absent sons and daughters. Who would disappoint them? — None, surely.

Write that letter home. Christmas Day is less than a month away. Send with it that little pictorial card that mother will treasure, the bit of pasteboard that will find a place of honor on her dressing table, link of affection binding the past with the present.

Surely every son owes that to his mother, and surely he can spare a thought for dad at Christmas time. There are no persons like mother and dad! Their self-sacrifice of other days, their unswerving devotion to their children has earned them the right to happiness in their declining years.

Mother and dad should have their letters on Christmas Day. If you will not write, at least send a Christmas card. You can buy a dozen for a dollar.

who died for us.

For some of us the poppy means many things—it reminds us of our long dead fathers who fought and died in World War I, of our uncles and very dear friends, but for the more fortunate of people, like myself, it reminds us of the beautiful but sad poem of "Flanders Fields" written by John McCrae.

FIRST PRIZE—

"By Mickey Kilgannon, grade 6:
Poppies — hundreds of poppies — thousands of poppies — growing, blowing wild in Flanders Fields!

Have you ever stopped to wonder what these poppies mean? To me they mean Peace! No sound of guns, no solemn columns of marching soldiers, no roar of war planes to disturb the peace.

To me they mean Freedom! Freedom to roam in the places dearest to me that ring with the joy and laughter of liberty.

To me they mean a source of money to wounded soldiers doomed to paralysis, loss of limbs, or other horrible fates. Those courageous men sit for hours, making cloth poppies, in remembrance of their friends or relatives who now lie in Flanders Fields.

May the poppy always bloom, and may the days of peace, which are now ours, never again be marred with a silhouette of a warplane against the horizon!

FIRST PRIZE—

"By Shirley Anne Campbell, Grade 5:

When I see a poppy I think of the soldiers in Flanders Field, who lay down their lives for us and the country in which we live.

I also remember that when we buy a poppy for Remembrance Day we are helping the disabled veterans who fought for our country. Buy a poppy in remembrance of the dead. Think of the suffering of the living, disabled veterans. To me this is what the poppy means—Remember the dead and help the living.

What The Poppy Means To Me

FIRST PRIZE—

"By Cynthia Bond, grade 8B:
When I look at a poppy I see imaginary pictures in four petals. The first picture is about the men on the battlefield. The brave men give up their lives for us, fight battles we should be fighting, and give up their whole home town life to go into a world of hatred and fear.

The second stands for the men who are in the hospitals, who almost got away from being hit, but didn't quite make it. These men make the poppies we wear in remembrance of their buddies.

The third stands for the most courageous men of all. These men now lie in peace in Flanders Fields where the poppies grow. These are the men who sleep under a white cross.

The fourth reminds me of their home towns where men, women and children gather on November 11 at the Cenotaph in the soldiers' remembrance. A poppy means so much if only you could understand.

FIRST PRIZE—

"By Dolores Ryznar, grade 7B:
The dainty little scarlet red poppy helps us to remember the soldiers who died for us and our country. Its little dainty red breast resembles blood that was shed by the soldiers who sacrificed their lives for us — it pleads to us to remember them!

We have Remembrance Day set aside specially for this purpose and for this day of remembrance — BUY A POPPY AND WEAR IT! These poppies are made by the maimed and ill soldiers in hospitals for a pastime and for the bit of extra money for recreation equipment and other things needed for these soldiers, so buy a poppy and don't forget the dead

FIELD MARSHAL VISCOUNT MONTGOMERY visits the home of Bernard M. Baruch in New York City en route to Denver to see President Eisenhower prior to the President's discharge from hospital. Behind them is a portrait of Sir Winston Churchill painted in 1946.

GIANT TEA KETTLE — For nearly 100 years this giant tea kettle has steamed over Boston's Scollay Square, advertising the merchandise within the store. In 1890 when a controversy arose as to the capacity of the kettle an official sealer of weights and measures filled it and engraved its capacity on the side.

RACEHORSE GUARDED DAY AND NIGHT—Nashua, star of the Belair Stud farm, owned by the late William Woodward, Jr., has been under a 24-hour gun shooting.

MONUMENT STILL UNCONQUERED — A 22-year-old Baltimorean recently tried to be the first to climb the city's 230-foot high Washington Monument. Firemen finally talked him out of it after he had gone about two-thirds of the distance. The man, identified as Kenneth Rieplech, climbed back the lightning rod conductor which scales the column and then dropped the last 20 feet into a net.

KING CHARLES M'BARIKA BISHONGA, six foot, nine inch ruler of Ruanda Urundi, in the Belgian Congo, sets out from his hotel in Rome with his Queen to an audience with the Pope. The royal family spent a week visiting in Italy.

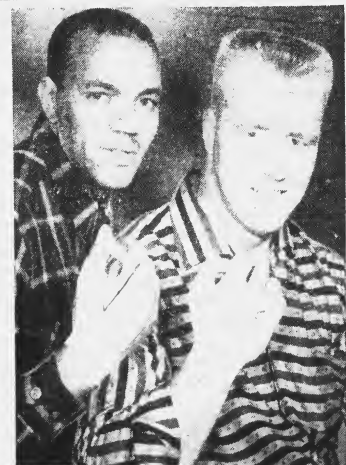

HOMAGE TO THE SHAH—Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, Shah of Iran, holds a land deed in his right hand while he lifts a peasant in the act of kissing his foot at a ceremony in Tehran during which he distributed 2,500 tons of crown lands among 287 homeless people.

MONEY AT LUNCHTIME — Not many jobs are lost in money at lunchtime as well as at the end of the week. But it's true for these workmen demolishing a subway-surface car platform at Philadelphia. Workmen have been finding money "by the handful" and the recent haul netted more than $25. The money goes into a pot and is "split-all-around" with employees.

HORSE OPERA—Only in Vienna, heartland of make-believe-come-true, could a horse show be held in such sumptuous surroundings. Members of the Hapsburg-founded Spanish Riding School parade their mounts in chandeliered hall of the Hofburg, onetime Imperial Castle of the Hapsburgs. Known the world around in equestrian circles, the renowned riding organization only recently returned to Vienna from its exile during the occupation.

IDENTICAL INJURIES—Avatus Stone, left, and Tom Tracy of Ottawa Rough Riders, sport identical injuries. They also have something else in common: they were named to the Big Four All-Star team.

Double Ring Ceremony Unites Blairmore Couple

The United Church in Blairmore was decorated with mixed fall flowers for the wedding of Beatrice Rose Lee and James Wilson Kubik on Saturday, December 3rd at 2:30 p.m.

Rev. Roy Entwistle of Blairmore, performed the double ring ceremony for the daughter of Mr. William Lee Sr., and the late Mrs. Lee of Blairmore and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Kubik Sr., of Blairmore.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in a floor length gown of yellow organza lace featuring two net overskirts. A band of red and white carnations and roses held in place her chapel veil. A cascading bouquet of red and white carnations and roses completed her ensemble.

Attending the bride was Mrs. Margery Holyk of Coleman who chose a mauve gown with matching veil and gloves. She wore a corsage of carnations.

Mr. John Lee, brother of the bride was best man.

Mrs. Isabel McLafferty supplied the wedding music while Mrs. Alfred McKay was soloist.

For her granddaughters wedding, Mrs. Henry Lee chose a navy afternoon dress with white accessories.

Following the wedding, a reception was held at the home of the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lee Sr., of Blairmore. The guests were greeted by Mrs. Art Noble of Bellevue. A three tiered wedding cake flanked with a bride and groom centred the bridal table. Rev. Chubb proposed the toast to the bride to which the groom responded.

The young people will take up residence in Blairmore.

Out-of-town guests for the occasion was Miss Charollette Noble of Lethbridge.

Don't expect too much of Christmas Day. You can't crowd into it any arrears of unselfishness and kindness that may have accrued during the past 12 months.
